

EIGER GALLERY launches new designs and welcomes fashion designer Holly Fulton to their roster of leading designers.

Eiger is design-directed by Terence Woodgate (Royal Designer for Industry) and Alba Bayona (Industrial and Jewellery designer), whose enthusiasm for interdisciplinary collaboration and the breaking down of traditional boundaries within the design industry is the driving force behind the company.

Eiger's collection contains individual pieces and mini collections by an impressive list of 10 designers from a wide range of design fields such as interiors, graphic, product and now fashion.

Eiger combines high-quality design with the best materials and manufacturing. The company relies on a team of jewellery makers who have the expertise needed to help the designers bring their ideas to life with the impeccable finish that their designs demand, mainly using rhodium plated sterling silver and natural gemstones.

This year the company adds new pieces and introduces a new design discipline: fashion, with designer Holly Fulton.

Terence Woodgate has created a minimalist and innovative necklace where a magnetic clasp becomes the centerpiece. Alba Bayona has created a mini collection in collaboration with her father, a fine jewellery maker with 42 years of experience. The collection includes a bracelet that opens and closes at the touch of a gemstone. Holly Fulton has designed the Chequered Collection: four beautiful pieces that combine a sharp hand-enamelled chequered board pattern with natural gemstones.

NEW DESIGNS

Holly Fulton is a womenswear and accessories designer living and working in East London. Born in Scotland, Holly studied in Edinburgh before going on to the prestigious Masters at the Royal College of Art. She established her eponymous label in 2009 after gaining industry experience in London and Paris.

Holly won Elle New Designer 2010, Scottish Young Designer 2009 and 2010, Elle Talent Launch Pad 2010 and Emerging Talent Accessories at British fashion awards 2010. She was a part of London's Fashion East platform for two seasons before being awarded sponsorship and support from the UK's NEWGEN initiative five seasons in a row.

The Holly Fulton label epitomises modern relaxed luxury. Attention to detail, complex graphic embellishment and witty twists are what make Holly's work instantly recognisable.

Holly designs for a confident woman, not afraid of adventure, or indeed attention.

For her Eiger collaboration, Holly has created a collection comprising of a necklace, a cuff, a pair of earrings and a ring with a chequerboard pattern created with carefully hand-applied resin enamel and an off-centre natural cabochon gemstone. "I am delighted to be working with Eiger Gallery; as a designer, it has provided me with an opportunity to move in to the realm of fine jewellery and explore techniques such as enamelling to full effect. I wanted the range to encapsulate our signature style and graphic sensibility whilst also offering a bold design choice for Eiger. The use of colour was vital for us and I am delighted with the end results". The pieces are rhodium plated solid sterling silver with a mirror polished finish, black enamel and malachite. Soon the collection will also be available in black onyx and orange enamel. All the designs are individually hand-made.

The pieces were shown for the first time during her London Fashion Week SS2016 show on the 19th of September 2015.

NEW DESIGNS

Alba Bayona, born in Spain, moved to London after graduating as a Technical Engineer in Industrial Design in 2011. She is a multifaceted designer with experience in furniture, lighting, consumer electronics and jewellery design.

In 2013, Alba started designing jewellery thanks to the strong influence of her father, Antonio Bayona, a fine jewellery maker with 42 years of experience. She combines her technical skills with her knowledge of the hand-crafted jewellery world and brings an individual approach to her design by using an industrial design process, yet retaining the essence of artisan manufacturing. Alba has worked for companies such as Monitor Audio and H Furniture; she founded AB Handmade Jewellery and currently directs Eiger Gallery.

She collaborated with her father to make the new Valencia Bracelet and Hoops. "I wanted to create a piece that you just don't want to take off, I also wanted it to have a beautiful hand-made mechanism where my dad could show off his skills". The bracelet is an elliptical band that opens and closes simply by pressing a gemstone button. "All the parts of this tiny mechanism are made and assembled by hand in such a way that nothing is visible from the outside. It is haute-jewellery reduced to its very essence." The piece has a rounded polished inside that makes it very comfortable to wear and contrasts with the flat, brushed outside surface, which makes the bracelet the perfect accessory for informal day-to-day use. The bracelet is available in rhodium plated sterling silver with a blue chalcedony and in 24ct gold plated brass with green aventurine. Every piece in this collection is individually hand-made in Valencia by Antonio Bayona.

NEW DESIGNS

Terence Woodgate is an industrial designer specialising in furniture and lighting, working from his studio in Mayfield, East Sussex. He is known for a stripped down, modern approach to design with an obsessive attention to detail and manufacture, exemplified in products like the Surface Table designed with John Barnard for Established & Sons. He became a Royal Designer for the Industry in 2003 and has received several international design awards including the Red Dot 'Best of the Best' and the IF ecology award. His current client list includes: Established & Sons, Punt Mobles, SCP, Concord Lighting, Paviom, Izé and Objekten, work he combines with Eiger's design direction. Examples of his work are held in private collections and in the permanent collections of the Museu de les Arts Decoratives, Barcelona and the V&A.

Terence's new design for Eiger is a unique concept for a necklace that makes the clasp the centerpiece by bringing it to the front. Two polished sterling silver bars crossover and are secured with a magnet, creating a striking pendant which offers versatility to the wearer.
